Monmouth and Ocean County Libertarians had a booth for the five-day Monmouth County Fair in July. In addition to their traditional distribution of literature, imprinted balloons and bags plus free copies of the Constitution, they registered five new Libertarians. Above, activists Lou Elwell and Pat Bontempo set up; below, fairgoers stop by the booth.

Correction

In our report on the Indianapolis Convention, we made an error. The 2004 National Nominating Convention is slated for Atlanta, over the Memorial Day weekend (not the July 4 time frame, as reported).

So You Want to Vote Republican?

by Pat Bontempo

One of the objections I've heard to registering Libertarian is: "I won't be able to vote in the Primary Election." I guess I was naive but it truly surprised me to hear this coming from NJLP members.

I thought we had decided there was no realistic hope to working within the Republican Party (or Democratic, but the objection so far has come from those wanting to vote for the GOP) that's why we formed a libertarian party. But apparently some members feel a vote on Primary Day can do some good and they want to retain that option.

Well, registering Libertarian does not close that option for all time. As the party affiliation form indicates, on the rare occasion when you may want to help, say, a Republican primary candidate all you'd need do is switch your affiliation to the GOP at least 50 days prior to the Primary.

Then you could vote for a Murray Sabrin, a former libertarian pushing a strident, repressive conservative agenda. Or a vaguely libertarian-sounding Brett Schundler and his pro-War on Drugs agenda.

OK, you get my point. What you'd be doing on Primary Day would be voting for "the lesser of two evils" -- the very thing we criticize voters for doing in the November General Election. Most of us who do so are confident that in the Fall there will be a LP candidate so we won't have to vote for "evil" twice in the same year.

In fact you'd be perpetuating the ill-founded hope that somehow the GOP can be salvaged or converted to a libertarian position. And in the process it continues to marginalize the Libertarian Party here in New Jersey. In my view:

90% of the time there is no fundamental difference among the contenders for the Republican (or Democratic) nomination.

The last Republican primary was typical. Can you honestly say any one of the three GOP US Senate hopefuls was more libertarian than the others? If Liz Macron had failed to get on the ballot would you have felt relieved knowing, "Well at least I can vote for Diane Allen in November."?

Over 90% of the time the person you vote for in the Primary will lose.

Talk about a "wasted vote" or "token protest vote." Your Libertarian vote in November at least sends a clear message whereas the meaning of your protest vote in June is lost. Were Sabrin's primary votes from libertarian Republicans or conservative, pro-life Republicans? Does anyone know? Does it matter?

Again, if there's someone running locally you feel compelled to vote for you can switch your registration to do so. If that's too much effort you should ask yourself how much do you really support that candidate.

But after the election switch back to the Libertarian Party. After all, you're presumably a Libertarian who wants to vote for the occasional Republican and not a Republican who is left with no alternative but to cast a Libertarian ballot in November.

*Editor's Note:

The Great NJ Libertarian Mystery

Perhaps the greatest unsolved mystery in the Garden State is the continuing disappearance of NJLP members. One day they're here then a year later they've vanished. It's happened literally thousands of times.

Why? There's probably no single answer. Tough economic times certainly cause some members to lapse, and even in prosperous years some might feel they're not receiving a sufficient return on their investment, i.e., membership dues.

Other times a member takes serious objection to a particular NJLP action or candidate. Allowing your membership to lapse becomes a way of expressing displeasure.

But in all these cases the member's beliefs have not fundamentally changed. He or she is still a libertarian. He may be a libertarian who is short of cash or really peeved about something, but he's unquestionably a libertarian.

Currently membership dues are a major revenue source for our party so joining or rejoining even at a lower membership level is a great help. But for those who truly can't afford it or who feel alienated from the party there's an alternative.

For the expense of a stamp you can now register with your county election board as a Libertarian. There's no pledge to sign. There's no implied endorsement of any particular candidate. There's no consent being given to a specific party action or position.

What is there? There's you. You taking a stand. You being counted.

Most registered Democrats disagree to a greater or lesser extent with parts of their party's platform. Not every registered Republican votes for the GOP in every race. It should be no different for Libertarians.

If you consider yourself a libertarian, then register Libertarian. Use the form and addresses below, or simply send your name and address to PDB10752@aol.com and we'll have a voter affiliation form and pre-addressed envelope out to you ASAP. Thanks.

Conklin Campaign Update

We hope everyone has been enjoying their summer. Now that autumn is approaching, campaign activities will be on the increase.

1. We have been invited to the Monmouth County Freeholder debates! The debates will be held October 16 at 7 pm at the main branch of the Monmouth County Library. More information will be posted on our website as it becomes available.

2. We also have been invited to speak to the Ocean Grove Homeowners Association on September 28th. All other Freeholder candidates have been invited. This will be our first chance to go head-to-head with the incumbents, so it should be a very exciting event.

3. Our photos are now online and will be integrated into the next batch of campaign materials. Many thanks to Bill Vandever for using his valuable time and experience to help out the campaign.

4. The bio for Kelly Thompson, our campaign material designer, is now online. Check it out at: <http://www.voteconklin.com/bio.htm>

5. A fundraiser is still in the works! The date and location is TBD!!

6. Our voter registration drive at the Red Bank train station on July 15th was a huge success! We registered over 30 people on the spot and passed out voter registration forms to dozens of others. It was a great opportunity to meet voters and pass out campaign material.

7. It is now easier than ever to make a campaign contribution. Check out our home page for more information.

Thanks for your support!

Libertarians Gain Exclusive Ballot Position in Camden County

A fax from the Camden County Clerk's Office to Tim Haas states that the Libertarian Party has column three for all of our candidates.

Tim Haas, Candidate for 1st District
Borough of Audubon

*Way to go, South Jersey candidates and activists!
- Ed.*

From The Chair

By NJLP State Chair Emerson Ellett

If you ever wonder what one individual can do to help make New Jersey a better place please consider doing something along the lines of what other activists are doing:

Distribute "Voter Declaration of Party Affiliation" forms, which are available from the NJLP and all 21 county clerks. You may recall that our successful lawsuit against the State of New Jersey has enabled voters to register as Libertarian. This is important because the NJLP state and county chairpersons will each receive "five copies of the lists of voters of each election district in each of the municipalities in his county." This tool is invaluable. The old parties tried to block us from getting it, but admitted to the court that they use voter registration lists to identify supporters. We can do as they do to raise money, target mailings and recruit members and candidates. But increasing the number of Libertarian registrations has another benefit as well. The more registered Libertarians we can recruit the more credibility we may gain from the media. Pat Bontempo makes the point if we don't register Libertarian voters the attorney general could possibly use it against us when we next challenge NJ's discriminatory election laws.

If you see something that needs to be done do it. Our 1st Congressional District candidate Tim Haas, for example, took the initiative to contact his county clerk about ballot position for himself, our U.S. Senate candidate Elizabeth Macron and our Freeholder candidates Colleen Fida Foster and Daniel Wright. The clerk has informed Tim in writing that the Libertarians will have column 3. Tim is also contacting other county clerks on behalf of Liz and our other Libertarian candidates. The more ballot columns we have to ourselves the greater the odds of successfully challenging the election law that grants the old parties a lock on columns 1 and 2. Bravo, Tim!

Indefatigable Steering Committee member Bob Hull is another inspiring Libertarian. Bob at his own expense is contacting lapsed members. He's sent test mailings to two groups, one of which has a lottery ticket premium. Based on the results we'll refine our mailings to the rest of the list. Thank you, Bob!

Electioneering should be foremost in our minds, I believe. Next year 40 Senate and 80 Assembly offices are up for grabs, as are hundreds of municipal and school board positions. Looking ahead to 2004 Vic Kaplan has expressed interest in running as our candidate in the 5th Congressional district. Of special interest in 2003 will be uncontested elections at the local level, where often one or the other of the old parties will either run no candidate, or will only partially fill the slate. Here's our chance to go toe to toe with the old parties, which will be big news in county weekly newspapers. So consider running yourself, or research likely uncontested races and report the results to your county chair or myself.

Most of us know freedom-loving students. Just point them in the direction of the Institute of Humane Studies at George Mason University in Arlington, VA. According to the IHS the Institute "has over 40 years of experience in supporting bright, thoughtful college students, recent graduates, and graduate students with an interest in the ideas of liberty." IHS offers a variety of programs:

- Summer Seminars on Liberty - www.theihs.org/tab3/
- Scholarships, Fellowships, Internships & Grants - www.theihs.org/tab1/index.html
- Career Development Services - www.theihs.org/tab2/index.html
- Web Resources on the Ideas of Liberty - www.libertyguide.com

The Summer Seminars are free, week-long programs, offering students an opportunity to explore the foundations and implications of individual liberty, free markets, the rule of law, and peace. Students can get a jump-start on next summer by signing up for email alerts on these programs by going to www.theihs.org/info. For additional information contact Amy Pelletier, Program Director at apelleti@gmu.edu.

And so, dear reader, take inspiration from Pat, Tim, Bob, Vic and the IHS. Just look around and do what you yourself can do to advance the cause of liberty.

Please contact the Steering Committee or myself at chair@njlp.org or 732 774-3684 if you are able to assist the party or our candidates in any way.

FREE STATE PROJECT

Liberty in Our Lifetime

*"A free state might show the rest of the world what can be done...Let's think seriously about this."
--Claire Wolfe*

As featured on Free-Market.Net, LewRockwell.com, "The Libertarian Enterprise," "The Sierra Times," Anti-State.Com, and Brian Wilson, KSFO Radio...

"The Free State Project is a plan in which 20,000 or more liberty-oriented people will move to a single state of the U.S. to secure a free society there. We will accomplish this by first reforming state law, opting out of federal mandates, and finally negotiating directly with the federal government for appropriate political autonomy. We will be a community of freedom-loving individuals and families, and create a shining example of liberty for the rest of the nation and the world." (from the Free State Project website, www.freestateproject.com)

The Free State Project is a new strategy for freedom. Rather than continuing the same failed strategies aimed at bringing Washington, D.C. to the light, the Free State Project aims at liberty in a single state. What can be done in a single state? A great deal. We could repeal state taxes and wasteful state government programs. We could end the collaboration between state and federal law enforcement officials in enforcing unconstitutional federal laws. We could end asset forfeiture and abuses of eminent domain. We could privatize utilities and end inefficient regulations and monopolies. Then we could negotiate directly with the federal government for more autonomy. In other countries, provinces have obtained the right to opt out of national programs and receive a tax rebate instead. We could do the same.

Where will the Free State Project succeed where others have failed? First, we aren't asking for "donations" in exchange for your participation; the F.S.P. is not a scheme for making money. Second, we formulate strategy and policy by consulting the membership; unlike some other failed "free nation" attempts, this is not some cult of personality. Third, we will choose our destination rationally and by looking at all the available evidence. The state where we will move will be decided by a vote of the full F.S.P. membership after research has been done on all the candidate states. The vote will be conducted according to the method of Cumulative Count, which more closely approximates the ideal of individual choice than simple majority rule.

The Free State Project unequivocally rejects violence, racism, and fraud. We are a peaceful, legal group, and we support working within the electoral process.

Join the Free State Project and take part in a rapidly growing movement aimed at securing liberty in our lifetime. We don't want your money, just your signature - and when the time comes, your willingness to carry through on your word of honor.

Libertarian Party is Right for N.J.

Kenilworth Leader, 8/1/02

To the Editor:

On Oct. 3, 2001, a New Jersey Appellate Court made the decision requiring the State Board of Elections to allow voters the right to register with third parties. This decision made the Garden State the 28th state to do this.

Since 1920, New Jersey had only two political parties, which one can register with. The ruling opened the door and let in a breath of fresh air into the state's stuffy and boring politics. It also allowed me the freedom to register as a member of the Libertarian Party.

What made me decide to become a Libertarian? Well, I feel that both major parties are bereft of ideas. Particularly here in the New Jersey, there is no difference between the Democratic and Republican parties. Both are in favor of an activist and bigger government that stifles the rights and freedoms of the people. Both say they believe in liberty but that is such a blatant falsehood that it would very much cause one to laugh.

Democrats have called for increased speech codes at colleges and universities. Their platform has called for the passage of "hate crimes legislation" which does nothing but punish thought. The Democrats further have also supported Affirmative Action programs that insult the very concept of equal protection under the law. As well, the party has gone out of the way to erode property rights in this state as well as the right of one to own a gun.

The party says it is "pro-choice", but when it comes to the right to dissent on the abortion issue, whether or not one can keep the money one earns, whether one has the right to purchase and drive sport utility vehicles, or the right of a parent to choose where to send their kids to school, they are not "pro-choice" at all. Let us also not forget the Democrats believe that government should be involved in the state economy passing excessive regulations and believe that government has the right to tax the heck out of individuals and businesses.

Republicans fare no better. Republicans, particularly the so-called "moderate" Republicans, have called for increased spending on education every year without any government oversight. They have refused to support school choice legislation. Republicans have also refused to pass direct initiative and referendum legislation that allows voters to enact legislation by the power of their vote.

Like the Democrats, they have called for more gun control laws; have supported farm subsidies, building sports stadiums with taxpayer monies, not to mention the fact that they have refused to cut state government spending.

Republicans say they believe in tax cuts, but what they believe is in low and not huge tax cuts. Republicans have supported laws banning flag burning, banning gay marriages, refused to support auto insurance deregulation, and, like the Democrats, have refused to support candidates that take the pro-life position on abortion. As radio talk-show host Larry Elder wrote, "There is a word for 'mainstream' Democratic ideology. It is called Socialism. And 'mainstream' Republican ideology? Socialism-lite."

Libertarians believe in a government limited by the chains of the state Constitution. Libertarians believe in Henry David Thoreau's motto that a government that governs best governs least. Libertarians also believe that New Jerseyans are smart and intelligent enough to run their own lives and can manage their own affairs without government interference. As well, Libertarians believe in the proposition that tax money paid is not the government's but the people's money and the government has no right to take 23.5 percent of what people earn.

The Libertarian message is a message that can resonate with many New Jerseyans. That is why I am proud to associate myself with this party. In New Jersey, there are 113 registered Libertarians right now. One day, the party membership will grow and will grow rapidly, and what a day that will be. I can hardly wait.

The Unintended Consequences

As the Senate hearings on a possible invasion of Iraq witnessed not a debate, but a carte blanche on a "regime change" in Iraq, one begins to wonder if Senators are even capable of thinking outside of their "Saddam must go" mantra.

When King Abdullah II of Jordan is warning President Bush not to invade Iraq, it is his place under the sun that he is concerned about. An invasion of Iraq would be the final proof to the millions of Arabs that the War on Terrorism is really nothing more than a war of the Muslim East versus the "infidel" Christian West. An invasion of Iraq would help to grow the ranks of al-Qaeda, further placing the lives of Americans in harms way. US embassies could become a target of terrorist attacks. Violent demonstrations are likely to take place throughout the Middle East. As a result, President Musharaff of Pakistan may not last for too long, and his nuclear arsenal would fall into the "wrong hands". Pro-bin Laden's demonstrators could topple Saudi Arabian government. The stock market and the economy in the US takes an even deeper plunge(the repeat of Persian Gulf War I), and my question to the testosterone-indulging Senators, is "is this what you all want?"

"But wait", I hear, "Saddam Hussein is trying to develop WMD (weapons of mass destruction). He has to be stopped." The White House refuses to provide any evidence that this is the case. The UN weapons' inspectors were in Iraq from 1991 to 1998, and were only kicked out, when they decided to request all government personnel files. Why, even the Clinton Administration desired a "regime change". Iraq refused, and accused the UN inspectors of being spies, which turned out to be true. Scott Ritter, for example, did acknowledge on CNN on 1/5/02 that he worked for the Israeli intelligence from 1995 to 1998. President Clinton then ordered air strikes in Iraq to bomb the nonexistent facilities of WMD. Hopes of the Iraqi government that the economic embargo against Iraq would be lifted as long as Iraq would comply with the UN inspectors, came to nothing.

The logic of the White House is such, that by definition, Pakistan, India, China and other countries should all be attacked by the United States government, or that the United States should be attacked, because it unlike Iraq already has weapons of mass destruction. The White House and Congress are about to inflame hatred throughout the Muslim world to an unprecedented level, and all because warmongering politicians simply want a "regime change". At the same time, they are quite supportive of spending taxpayers' money on boosting the US image abroad. I have one suggestion for them instead: make love, not war, and the world would be a much safer place to live for all of us. But perhaps, I am a bit too optimistic. It's been said that power is the biggest aphrodisiac.
